LOS ANGELES – October 6, 2011 – Part convening, part symposium, part reunion, part performance, the two-day event Still Doin' It: Fanning the Flames of the Woman's Building is a dialogue between feminist artists then and now. To be held October 15 and 16 at various Los Angeles venues, the multi-faceted symposium complements the exhibition, Doin' It in Public: Feminism and Art at the Woman's Building that opened last week at the Ben Maltz Gallery on the main campus of Otis College of Art and Design. Along with historical ephemera and documentation, the show surveys the work of groundbreaking feminist artists/designers and artist collectives who gathered together at the Los Angeles Woman's Building from 1973 through 1991.

Still Doin' It: Fanning the Flames of the Woman's Building begins on Saturday with Doin' It in Public scholars Alexandra Juhasz, Jennie Klein, Michelle Moravec, and Jennifer Sorkin presenting tours of the exhibition, and Woman's Building writers reading from their work in the evening at Antioch University. On Sunday the keynote speaker is Woman's Building co-founder and renowned graphic designer Sheila Levrant de Bretteville. In addition there will be interactive dialogues and performances including one by the Feminist Art Workers. On Sunday afternoon Phranc, the all-American Jewish lesbian folksinger, hosts a concert titled "This Is Your Life: the Woman's Building" at the Skirball Cultural Center. The complete schedule and tickets are available at http://www.otis.edu/public\_programs/ben\_maltz\_gallery/wb\_tickets.html

The feminist art movement of the 1970s set off an explosion of art-making and analysis that continues to reverberate in the art world today, and the Woman's Building (WB) in Los Angeles was one of its epicenters. In 1973, artist Judy Chicago, graphic designer Sheila Levrant de Bretteville, and art historian Arlene Raven founded the WB, and for over two decades it helped shape the regional and international cultural landscapes. Through extensive public performances, site-specific work, networking with political activists, and collaborations, the feminist art movement at the WB raised consciousness, invited dialogue, and transformed culture. The WB handed women their rightful claim to the role of "artist." It inspired and allowed members to create a community of women who saw art as a powerful tool for social change, and shared this vision with the public.

Still Doin' It: Fanning the Flames of the Woman's Building is part of Pacific Standard Time: Art in L.A. 1945-1980. This unprecedented collaboration, initiated by the Getty, brings together more than sixty cultural institutions from across Southern California for six months beginning October 2011 to tell the story of the birth of the L.A. art scene.

The WB exhibition's opening reception and publication launch on October 1 drew hundreds of the artists and designers who pioneered the feminist art movement in Los Angeles and beyond. A listing of the artists featured in Doin' It in Public, including Miriam Schapiro, Faith Wilding, Betye Saar, and Suzanne Lacy, can be found at www.otis.edu/benmaltzgallery. Doin' It in Public is on view through January 28, 2012.

Exhibitions such as WACK! Art and the Feminist Revolution, 1965-1980, (MOCA, Los Angeles, 2007); Catalog L.A.: Birth of Art Capital: 1955-1985 (Centre Pompidou, Paris, 2006); and Sexual Politics: Judy Chicago's Dinner Party in Feminist Art (Hammer Museum, 1996) positioned the WB within the West Coast feminist art movement. This exhibition is the first to fully explore the contributions of the Woman's Building in its widest ramifications.

The major focus of Doin' It in Public is revealing the WB's emphasis on developing, teaching, and executing collaboration. The work of collaborative groups such as Ariadne: A Social Art Network, Chrysalis Magazine, Feminist Art Workers, Feminist Studio Workshop, The L.A. Women's Video Center, Madre Tierra Press, Mother Art, Sisters Of Survival, The Waitresses, and the Women's Graphic Center is presented and contextualized through the exhibition, programs, and publications.

Otis has released a two-volume publication in conjunction with the exhibition. Volume I: From Site to Vision: the Woman's Building in Contemporary Culture, is a collection of 14 essays originally published online in 2007, edited by Sondra Hale and Terry Wolverton. Essayists include Sheila Levrant de Bretteville and Lucy R. Lippard, activist and writer on contemporary art and culture. Volume II: Doin' It in Public: Feminism and Art and the Woman's Building includes research and writing by a prestigious team of scholars who assembled in 2008-09 to shape the curatorial focus of this project.

Doin' It in Public project directors at Otis are Meg Linton, Director of Galleries and Exhibitions, Ben Maltz Gallery and Sue Maberry, Director of Library and Information Technology and former Project Director at the Woman's Building. Former Woman's Building artists as well as Otis faculty members advising on the project include Suzanne Lacy, Director of Otis' Graduate Public Practice program, as well as Cheri Gaulke, Jerri Allyn, Terry Wolverton, Nancy Angelo and Sondra Hale. About Pacific Standard Time: Art in L.A. 1945 – 1980

Pacific Standard Time is a collaboration of more than sixty cultural institutions across Southern California, coming together for six months beginning in October 2011 to tell the story of the birth of the Los Angeles art scene and how it became a major new force in the art world. Each institution will make its own contribution to this grand-scale story of artistic innovation and social change, told through a multitude of simultaneous exhibitions and programs. Exploring and celebrating the significance of the crucial post-World War II years through the tumultuous period of the 1960s and 70s, Pacific Standard Time encompasses developments from L.A. Pop to post-minimalism; from modernist architecture and design to multi-media installations; from the films of the African American L.A. Rebellion to the feminist activities of the Woman's Building; from ceramics to Chicano performance art; and from Japanese American design to the pioneering work of artists' collectives.

Initiated through $10 million in grants from the Getty Foundation, Pacific Standard Time involves cultural institutions of every size and character across Southern California, from Greater Los Angeles to San Diego and Santa Barbara to Palm Springs. <http://www.pacificstandardtime.org/>
