

Otis College of Art and Design in Los Angeles prepares a diverse community of students for success, empowering them to transform the global creative economy.

ABOUT OTIS COLLEGE

The first art and design school in Los Angeles, Otis College is a nonprofit institution serving full time BFA and MFA students in addition to offering extension programs for adults and children. Otis College has educated generations of influential artists and designers who have left their mark on contemporary culture. Our alumni are leaders of impactful organizations, innovative companies, and leading brands. A proven talent pathway to industry, Otis College is changing the face of the creative economy.

OTIS COLLEGE REPORT ON THE CREATIVE ECONOMY

Since 2007, the College has produced the Otis College Report on the Creative Economy, an invaluable tool that assesses the tremendous influence and economic impact of creative sectors. In 2024, the report transitioned to an online dashboard, increasing the relevance and accessibility of the data and providing a foundation for strategic research. The creative economy dashboard is complemented by additional research offering analysis of timely topics across creative sectors.
